

TODD KAMMER

Creative Director

Todd Kammer is a creative artist with significant experience in graphic design and web design. Todd enjoys developing visual solutions that inform and persuade, using simplicity and function to create strong, lasting and remarkable impressions. After earning a bachelor's degree in visual communication from Kent State University, Todd worked for four years as a graphic designer for an outdoor advertising company in Los Angeles and then as an art director for an online video training company.

He spent the next five years working as the art director for a group of community newspapers in San Diego, leading all print layout and graphic design functions for multiple print and web products. Todd has also completed numerous freelance projects for a variety of clients, including several high-profile retail stores and media properties.